		What was life like when my grandparents were young?		Who used to live in Bramall Hall and what was their life like?
HOOK	Black history month	Children use the book 'The Tiger Who Came to Tea' to explore what homes and shops were like when their grandparents were young (1960s). Compare similarities and differences in the kitchen, talk to staff who were children at that time and ask them about their homes, Children then go on to find out about 'The Windrush' using key text 'Coming to England'. They reflect on the differences between what people coming from the Caribbean thought it would be like and what they experienced when they got to England. They learn about the significant person Floella Benjamin and the ways that she has contributed to society since she came to live in England.		Children discuss what they know about Bramall Hall and then make observations and generate questions to outline what they want to find out. Children find out a little about what 'Tudor' means and then go on to discover what it was like to be rich and poor at this time. Children visit Bramall Hall and find out specifics about the Davenport family who lived there and their lifestyles Children then go on to make comparisons between their lives and what life was like for children in the Davenport family.		Children recap previous knowledge from Reception when they learnt about what seaside holidays were like in the past. They use the loan box from PBM to investigate artefacts and ask and answer questions. The children then go on to learn about two significant women- Grace Darling and Mary Annin. They learn about their lives and find out why we still remember them today. They make comparisons between the two people and decide which one is most worthy of a statue in their hometown, giving reasons and weighing up the evidence.

		What is a hero?		Why has the Great Fire of London been remembered for hundreds of years?	How did transport change the world?
HOOK	Black History Month	Children spend some time thinking about what a hero is and the many different ways people can be considered as heroes. They learn about the local hero James Kirk. This leads on to learning about whether heroes are always famous, focussing particularly at the roles of 'homefront heroes' during WW2 and especially evacuation as Cheadle Hulme received evacuees from Manchester during WW2.		Children discuss what they already know and then generate own questions which they go on to find the answers to themselves. They learn about sources and categorise them as secondary and primary and also think about what they do and don't show us. Moving on from that, they then go on to learn about the Great fire of Nantwich, again answering their own questions and using a variety of sources. Once they know about both they make a comparison of the two using a venn diagram and consider why it is that the London fire is more well known than the Nantwich one.	Children look at two significant events in the history of transport. Firstly, the Rainhill Trials which has links to Manchester. The act out the story of the trials and then look at the impact of locomotives around within the UK and then around the world. Next the children learn about the first moon landing, looking not only at the astronauts but also the Hidden Figures that worked together to make it all possible (spotlight on Katherine Johnson).
